MONDAY EVENING, FEB. 21, 1916.

JOHN JONES.

After weeks of tubercular preparation and advance agency advertising, we have the Bob Jones evangelism with us for a period of weeks during which time it is expected to bring some results. The advertising force of repentant sinners, and they not only have many mortal souls from the flames of hell but likewise rejuvenate the church by contributing to their membership and their enthusiasm.

Modern evangelism in its most exact form is as old as the settlements. Evangelism we have always had with us. Revival meetings and camp meetings were its earlier forms. The time has come when the tubercular and febrile in their exercises. The sinners they sought to lead to repentance were full of red blood, and if the spirit was sometimes slow to descend upon them it was all the more powerful when it came.

Old-time evangelism did not have such a gaudy as Billy Sunday, but as a rule "the saint stood on their pulpits in the quietness of speech" and the tears rolled down their cheeks in as they pleaded at the feet of God for the souls of sinners groping blindly in the darkness of guilt for the high sign of the Great Light. Many souls were saved, but the destruction of paper collars was untimely and irreverent.

The old-time evangelist in fact in the annual work of spiritual regeneration. It sang with unabated vigor and unweary effort while the minister and the brethren fought Satan to a standstill.

Camp meetings were merely the expression of this revival sentiment during the summer season. The brethren met in "God's first temple" and with more or less bodily comfort sought to save souls for a season. The camp meetings are still popular some sections, but not in the settlements where the facilities are limited and their popularity has waned. The colored brethren still cling to them with indifferent success.

This is an idea of spiritualizing the annual work of spiritual regeneration. It sang with unabated vigor and unweary effort while the minister and the brethren fought Satan to a standstill.

WHEN MACHINES WON'T WORK.

The West Penn was tied up for a couple of hours Saturday evening because of an accident to its power-converting system. The West Penn's plant was "Water under all around, and not a drop to drink." The power plant has plenty of coal, but the means of getting it to the boilers had been interrupted. A passenger steamship "Savoy" of 1,000 passengers bridged this difficulty over until the original break was repaired. Labor-saving devices are fine save when they fail to work.

Special to The Courier.

SCOTTDALE, Feb. 21.—Scottdale on Saturday met royally entertained the school teachers of Westmoreland county at the high school building. Scottdale had very complete plans and the teachers and principals and superintendents greatly enjoyed looking around and coming in contact with plant so fully equipped. The morning session was done away with entirely and the persons who had no particular interest in the various departments held conference while the department which they thought might interest them and no person was disappointed for it was not the usual dry educational meeting but something that was different and held an interest for every person. In the general session Prof. C. P. Maxwell of Youngwood gave a very fluent address on "Worlds" and this was declared to be one of the best ever heard by the teachers. Miss Martha Steele of Greensburg gave an address on "Books in the grades." The principal address of the afternoon was delivered by Dr. Waitman Harbo of the University of West Virginia on "The Awkward Age." One of the particularly interesting points of the address was that dumbbell and dumb bell given by the No. 6 children was one of the cleverest dolls ever offered to this group of teachers. Miss Lett Shupe's children gave a dumbbell drill and Miss Louise Kerr's children the dumb bell.

The high school department conducted in the morning was excellent; Prof. J. L. Spiegel of Greensburg gave an address on what becomes of the high school product in Westmoreland county. Mr. W. H. L. Letter of Pittsburgh spoke on student activities in the high school. Prof. E. A. Raymey of Harrison City spoke on the continuation school.

The department of special teachers was well attended and had an interesting program. Miss Donaldson of Latrobe spoke on "Gatherer's"; Miss Nettie McClure spoke on "Helpful Busy Work"; Miss Emma Shaw of Latrobe also gave an address on this. Miss Jean Robinson of Latrobe gave a talk on "Reading in the Grades." The Scottdale teachers then discussed special work in primary grades.

John Werner of Scottdale, was elected president of the high school department, Mrs. Anna D. Mount, of Mount Pleasant, was elected president of the primary department, and Mr. Shaw of Latrobe, was elected president of the special teachers' department.

CHAPTER XVI.

A Word of Encouragement
NE usually has breakfast on the porch of the Hotel Schwobertor at Interlaken. It is not the most fashionable hotel in the little town at the head of the lake of Brienz, but the rooms are excellent, the food is good, and money to be had with one's breakfast cannot be surpassed in the Bernese Oberland.

R. Schmidt sat facing the decorated Bocke Dank. His eyes were dancing with the joy of living.

"Well, here we are, and, in spite of that, where are we?" said Dank, who saw nothing beautiful in the smile of any early morn. "I mean to say, what have we to show for our pains? We sneak into this God-forsaken hamlet, surrounded on all sides by abominable mountains, the chief of which, at the end of twenty-four hours, we discover that the fair Miss Giselle has played us a shabby trick. I daresay she is laughing herself sick over the whole business."

"Which is more than you can say for yourself, Bocke," said Robin blithely. "Brace up! All is not lost. We'll wait here a day or two longer and then—

"Hello, who is this approaching? It is no other than the great Georgius himself, the king of Sheolus, as they say in the books I used to read. Good morning, Bocke!"

The sharp visaged little minister of police came up to the table and fixed an accusing eye upon his sovereign—the literal truth, for he had the other eye closed in a protracted wink.

"I regret to inform your majesty that the enemy is upon us," he said. "I fear that our retreat is cut off. Nothing remains save—"

"Where is she?" demanded Robin, unimpressed by this gloomy pan-

"At this instant, sir, I fancy she is rallying her forces in the very face of a helpless mirror. In other words, she is preparing for the fray. She is dressing."

"When did she arrive?"

"She came last night via Milan."

"From Milan?" cried Robin, asto-

"Lished."

"A roundabout way, I'll admit," said the baron, dryly, "and tortuous in these hot days, but admirably suited to a purpose. I should say that she was bent on throwing some one off the track."

"And yet she came!" cried the prince, in exultation. "She wanted to come after all, now didn't she, the Danks?"

"She gave the lieutenant a look of triumph."

"She is more dangerous than I thought," said the guardman, mournfully.

"Sit down, baron," commanded the prince. "I want to lay down the law to all of you. You three will have to move on to Graustark and leave me to look out for myself. I will not have Miss Giselle."

"No," exclaimed the baron, with unusual vehemence, "I expected you to propose something of the sort, and I am obliged to confess to you that we have discussed the contingency in advance. We will not leave you. That is final. You may depose us, ex-

"Where is she?" demanded Robin.

"Be us, curse us or anything you like, but still we shall remain true to the duty we owe to our country. We stay here, Prince Robin. Just so long as you are content to remain."

Robin's face was very red. "You shame me, baron," he said simply.

"Now, I have a suggestion of my own to offer," said the baron, taking a seat at the end of the table. "I confess that Miss Giselle may not be favorably impressed by the constant attendance of three able-bodied nurses, and, as she happens to be no fool, it is reasonably certain that she will grasp the significance of our necessity. Now I propose that you and I, Danks and myself, face ourselves as completely as possible during the rest of our enforced stay in Interlaken. I propose that we take quarters in another hotel and leave you and Hobbs to the tender mercies of the enemy. It seems to me that—"

"Good!" cried Robin. "That's the ticket! I quite agree to that, baron." Ten o'clock found the three gentlemen—so classified by Hobbs—of the Schwobertor and arranging for a meeting at the station at the end of twenty-four hours, we discovered that the fair Miss Giselle had played us a shabby trick. I daresay she is laughing herself sick over the whole business."

"Which is more than you can say for yourself, Bocke," said Robin blithely. "Brace up! All is not lost. We'll wait here a day or two longer and then—

STOMACH UPSET?

Get at the Real Cause—Take
Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

There's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion with the real cause of the aliment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver and soothe the bowels. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach trouble.

If you have a bad taint in your mouth, coated, appetite poor, lazy, trouble, or any kind of food, you should take Olive Tablets, the natural cure.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound, mixed with olive oil. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain.

Take one or two bedtime for quick relief. If you like, take two if you like. At 25c and 50c per box. All in all.

The Olive Tablet Company, Columbus, O.

said he. "I shall be here for a week or ten days—or perhaps longer." He put it in the form of a question, after all.

"Indeed?" How I envy you. I am sorry to say I shall have to leave in a day or two."

His face fell. "Why?" he demanded, almost indignantly.

"I am having such a good time disobeying my father, Mr. Schmidt, and eluding pursuers. I am only a matter of a day or two before I am discovered here, so I mean to keep on dodging. It is splendid fun."

"Do you mind telling me where you are going to, Miss Giselle?"

"First to Vienna—then—well, you know where. I have decided to go to Edelweiss."

"Edelweiss!" he exclaimed in astonishment. He could hardly believe his ears.

"It is the very last place that my father would think of looking for me. Besides, I am curious to see the place. I understand that the great Mr. Blithers is to be there soon, and the stupid prince who will not be tempted by millions, and it is even possible that the extraordinary Miss Blithers may take it into her head to look the place over before definitely deciding to be its princess. I may find some amusement or entertainment as an onlooker when the circus begins."

He was staring at her wide eyed and incredulous. "Do you really mean to say you are going to Graustark?"

"I have thought of doing so. Don't you think it will be amusing to be on the scene when the grand climax occurs?"

At this time she was regarding him with amused eyes, half closed eyes.

She knew that he was the Prince of Graustark; she had known him for many days. Perhaps if she had known all the things that were in his enormous brain she would not have ventured so far into the comedy she was constructing. She would have hesitated—aye, she might have changed her methods completely. But she was in the mood to do and say daring things.

Queen Collateral.

"Here is a fact as strange as it is true," said an Egyptianologist. "Mummies in ancient Egypt were used chiefly as collateral."

"An Egyptian wanted to borrow his father's or grandfather's mummy for a ransom."

"It is quite dark over there," she said with a frown.

"Quite," he agreed. "Which accounts, no doubt, for your failure to see them."

"It is very dark over there," he said.

"I see you this morning riding with him," he said gloomily.

She turned her face away and for a moment was silent. "Shall we take those chairs over there, Mr. Schmidt?"

"They appear to be abandoned as we." She indicated two chairs near the broad portals.

He shook his head. "If we are looking for the most utterly abandoned, allow me to call your attention to the two in corner corner."

MEASLES CASES IN MT. PLEASANT NOW REACH TOTAL OF 75

Many Vacancies in the School Rooms of Town are the Consequence.

WASHINGTON TEA A SUCCESS

Circle Club Has Delightful Affair Which is Largely Attended; Home Credits for School Children is Developing; Other News of Interest.

Special to The Courier, MOUNT PLEASANT, Feb. 21.—Dr. J. W. Shuler, president of the board of health, announced yesterday that the number of cases of measles in town had reached the seventy-five mark. This makes a larger number of school children out of school. In one of the church street rooms sixteen children are out.

On Saturday evening about 8:30 o'clock a house on the flatiron Ohio siding caught fire. Two men overhauled the engine which was sent to put out the third ward fire department arrived at the scene of the fire before the truck reached there. The third ward boys soon had a stream of water playing on the fire and put it out.

The Club Club's Washington tea was a decided success on Saturday afternoon and despite the very cold of afternoon a large crowd was present. On the reception committee was Mrs. D. L. George, Mrs. W. A. Stover, Mrs. Anna Edwards, Mrs. Nellie Rupert and Mrs. William Bausch, all of whom wore the Colonial costume and looked as though they might have stepped down from a colonial hall. All those present in the Colonial costume had powdered white. The rooms were beautifully decorated in the national colors, red, white and blue. Mrs. George W. Stover poured, using a Sheffield tray and urn. The waiters were from the Old Stone Villa Restaurant, Adeleau Ramsay and Artie Lancaster.

The Francis Willard memorial service was held in the United Brethren Church yesterday afternoon. All dressed were made up. Rev. J. J. Hartman and Dr. J. L. Lyle, a deacon and son by Mrs. Frank Cooper and Mrs. Anna Edwards, Mrs. W. E. Stover sang a solo. Mrs. G. W. Stover presided at the meeting and Mrs. Verna Lee, a young歌舞者, recited. Mrs. Elizabeth Hutchison and daughter Mary left this morning for Atlantic City for the former's health.

Miss Elizabeth Donet and Miss Timothy were calling on friends in Greensburg yesterday.

Also, Mrs. Jeffress of Uniontown was the guest of Mrs. Viola Stevenson over Sunday.

A parents' and teachers' meeting was held at the Church street school building. President of the school over by Mrs. Opal Hartel, principal of the Church street school. She gave a few preliminary remarks after which Margaret Henderson told the story of the first day. A song and story was given by the girls' grade. Music by the piano. Grade address, Bertha Hopkins; illustration, Rose Krieger; grade, Fifth grade; recitation, Robert Merilli; sanitation, Miss Blumberger; song, Helen White; piano solo, Mabel Johnson; recitation, Mrs. Untercheck. At this point of the meeting, Mrs. Stevens gave a report on the work done by the committee on "Home Work" composed of herself, Mrs. J. L. Undercheck, Mrs. Joseph Miller, Mrs. W. E. Stover and Mrs. Hartman. They were all present. The matter was taken up and discussed by a number of those present.

Mr. Stover spoke briefly in favor of the new method of giving the child a chance to work for his home. The girls' grade, music by the piano, and generally discussed against this method was the dishonesty in marking the child's credit by the parent. Mrs. Stevens explained that this would not be cheating the school but would be honest. A number of the parents did not understand and thought this would take from their school marks if they did not work at home. This was thoroughly explained and after a vote was taken the method was adopted by the parents and is now ready to come before the school board. Dr. W. H. Horner, president of the school board, and Charles Clark, also a member of the board, were present and heard the discussion.

Misses from Uniontown entertained the Fancy Work Club at her Main street home Friday.

Re. Clifford of Dayton, O., has moved to his Shupe street home and will take charge of the First Brethren Church.

The junior, senior and post graduates entertained 19 friends at a Washington birthday party at the Institute Friday evening. Red, white and blue were used as decorations. Prizes were given for the games.

Dr. James Hartman entertained a number of friends with a turkey dinner Friday evening.

Miss Ursula Morrow, aged 19 years, died Friday at her home here. She was a bride of a few months. Funeral services were held Sunday morning from the Italian Church.
